Licensed in both DC and MD, Chris is a knowledgeable and personable real estate professional who has helped many satisfied clients find and sell their homes since 2008. With a calm and positive approach, he works with care and dedication to achieve excellent results.

Before real estate, Chris worked 25 years in the television network news business as a video photographer for several national cable and broadcasting companies. Working with national reporters and on his own, he covered the important and breaking news events from such places as Capitol Hill, the Defense Department, the State Department, the White House, as well as many of the embassies in town. And as a result, he is familiar with just about every neighborhood, both in the city and in suburban Maryland.

In addition to having lived and worked here for most of his life, Chris's ties to the area are deep. He is a seventh generation Washingtonian and his great-grandfather, who was the Dean of Georgetown Law School for over 30 years, owned the Hamilton House and the land where Stone Ridge School now stands. He is married to Nisi Hamilton, who also grew up in Washington, DC, and is a fashion consultant selling Etcetera ladies designer clothing. Together they have four children, ages 11 - 24, who have attended various private and public schools in the area.

Chris believes in working diligently in the pursuit of his clients' goals with the highest of standards. The pleasure of helping people move smoothly on to a new stage in their lives is one of the most rewarding aspects of his work.
